The Honorable Dudley Spade, Chair

Dear Senator Hardiman and Representative Spade:

Section 549 of 2007 Public Act No. 131 states : "The department shall meet with personnel employed by the office of children's ombudsman and the state court administrative office's foster care review board to investigate streamlining the oversight process for child welfare services. The intent of the legislature is to ensure appropriate and adequate oversight while reducing duplication and redundancy between government offices."

On March 1, 2006, the Office of Family Advocate coordinated a meeting between the Michigan Department of Human Services (MDHS), the Office of Children's Ombudsman (OCO) and the State Foster Care Review Board (FCRB). The group discussed each entity's role in providing oversight to Michigan's child welfare system, specifically targeting areas of potential redundancy and duplication. At that time, the committee concluded that while there is some overlap in the case review process, the reviews are conducted for different and specific statutory purposes and in some cases, reviews address issues specific to a complainant's concerns. Additionally, it was determined that the scope/breadth of each entity's reviews varies considerably, as does the relief offered to the complainant. Therefore, while overlap does exist, the oversight provided by each entity needs to remain separate and independent to satisfy statutory requirements, ensure objectivity, address complainant's concerns and maintain integrity in the review process.

On March 13, 2006, DHS complied with Section 549 and reported the conclusion to Senator Hardiman and Representative Shaffer (see attached). Since that time, the core functions of the MDHS, the OCO and the State FCRB have not changed. The current relationship between MDHS, the OCO and the State FCRB provides appropriate and necessary checks and balances to ensure effective oversight of child welfare services.

Dear Senator Hardiman and Representative Shaffer:

Section 549 of 2005 P.A. No. 147 states: "The department shall meet with personnel employed by the office of the children's ombudsman and the state court administrative office's foster care review board to investigate streamlining the oversight process for child welfare services. The intent of the legislature is to ensure appropriate and adequate oversight while reducing duplication and redundancy between government offices."

On March 1, 2006, the Office of Family Advocate coordinated a meeting between the Michigan Department of Human Services, the Office of Children's Ombudsman and the State Foster Care Review Board. The following individuals participated in the meeting:

- Kathie McDonald, Director, of DHS Outstate Operations
- Janet Strobe, Special Assistant, DHS Children's Services Administration
- Mary Chaliman, Manager, DHS Foster Care Program
- Verlie Ruffin, Ombudsman
- Mike Harmon, Office of Children's Ombudsman
- Jim Novell, Director, Michigan Foster Care Review Board Program
- Steve Yager, Director, Office of Family Advocate

The group discussed each entity's role in providing oversight to Michigan's child welfare services program, specifically targeting areas of redundancy and duplication. In general, the group determined that while each entity may conduct reviews of the same types of cases, the reviews are conducted for different and specific statutory purposes. Additionally, the scope/breadth of each entity's reviews varies considerably, as does the relief offered to the complainant. Ultimately, the group determined that, while overlap does exist, the oversight provided by the various entities needs to remain separate and independent to satisfy statutory requirements, ensure objectivity and maintain integrity in the review process. This review also led to the conclusion that the current oversight structure is sufficient, providing appropriate checks and balances, and it is functioning effectively on behalf of Michigan's children.

Sincerely,
